The Jim McLean Golf Schools Junior Elite Camp is for the aspiring junior golfer looking to improve his/her long game, short game and mental game with an emphasis on course management. The program is structured to prepare juniors for competing successfully at a national level. The combination of range and on-course instruction will teach students to practice and play golf more efficiently. Offered only during the summer, this school is an intense week-long program. With an average handicap improvement of 6.5 shots per student, many juniors have competed successfully on the national level. The following juniors who have been ranked #1 in America attended the McLean Golf School for instruction: Cristi Kerr, Erik Compton, Tyler Leon, Liz Janangelo, James Vargas and Alexis Thompson.

The Jim McLean Golf School at Trump National Doral is entering its 25th season. Since the school's inception in 1991, it has been established as the #1 Golf School in America. Their top position in the golf school industry has been recognized by US News and World Report, CNN and Travel & Leisure Magazine.
